The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, requires the specification to be written in "full, clear, concise, and exact terms." The specification is replete with terms which are not clear, concise and exact. The specification should be revised carefully in order to comply with 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph. Examples of some unclear, inexact or verbose terms used in the specification are to be found throughout the specification and abstract.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is unclear what substrate the "substrate in a close range" in each claim refers to. Since the scope of the claims is unclear, the allowability of the claims 1-3 over prior art cannot be determined at the present time.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Alley.

Alley discloses in fig. 5 a Doherty amplifier circuit mounted on a GaAs substrate 82 with a ground plane 83 underneath. Since all portions of the circuit are mounted thereon, the input and output line portions to and from the amplifiers 84 would be included. While no mention of temperature or humidity stability is explicitly made by Alley, a 'physically stable' substrate would have been an obvious requirement, and it is submitted that a GaAs substrate mounted over a ground plane would normally be considered to be physically stable w.r.t. normally encountered levels of temperature and humidity.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Thompson discloses a Doherty amplifier with circuitry to compensate for temperature and process variations. Pengelly et al disclose a Doherty amplifier mounted on a substrate where the area under the amplification devices includes metal interposers. Pengelly et al. does not predate the effective filing date of the present application.
